The Candidates' Tournament to determine a challenger for the world chess championship will get under way Wednesday, May 2, at the Hotel Intercontinental in Curacao, Netherlands Antilles.

hopes will American mainly with Bobby Fischer, brilliant 19-year-old grandmaster from Brooklyn, making his first appearance since his overwhelming victory in the Stock-holm Interzonal Tournament.

Fischer's chief opponent, and favorite to win the tournament, is Mikhail Tal of Latvia, who won the world championship in a match with Mikhail Botvinnik of Moscow in 1960, then lost a return match last year.

But only the foolhardy or prejudiced would predict anything remotely similar this time. Fischer's improvement in the last three years has been dramatic. In their most recent joint tournament, in Bled, Yugoslavia, last year, Fischer defeated Tal in a beautiful game.

The second American resentative in Curacao will be Pal Benko of New York, who qualified through a playoff match after tying for sixth place in Stockholm.

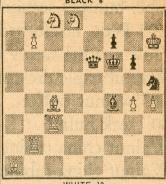

The majority of the eight players will be from the Soviet Union. In addition to Tal they will have Paul Keres, Ewstim Cellen Willows Paul Keres, Ewstim Paul Keres, Ew The majority of the eight coplayers will be from the Soviet Union.
